REDEVELOPMENT OF THE CHANGI CHAPEL & MUSEUM

29 January 2018 – The National Heritage Board (NHB) will embark on the redevelopment of the Changi Chapel & Museum later this year, from 2 April 2018, to refresh the site’s infrastructure, content and offerings. This will be its first major redevelopment in more than 15 years for the Changi Chapel & Museum.

The Changi Museum Pte Ltd (TCMPL), an associate company of Singapore History Consultants Pte Ltd (SHC), was appointed by the Singapore Tourism Board (STB) and subsequently NHB to manage the museum from 2001 to 2017. It is a successful example of a private and public sector partnership between SHC and government agencies, STB and NHB. From March 2017 to 2018, TCMPL has jointly-operated the museum with NHB.

Redevelopment of the Changi Chapel & Museum

Dedicated to telling the stories that unfolded in Changi during World War II, the Changi Chapel & Museum aims to inspire younger generations while honouring the spirit and resilience of those who underwent that period of Singapore’s history. Originally located next to the Changi Prison, it was relocated to its current site on 15 February 2001.

The first gallery revamp of the museum was conducted in 2005 by TCMPL, with the support of STB, and involved the curation of new exhibits, galleries and programmes. The gallery revamp transformed three-quarters of the original gallery space, incorporating new artefacts and interpretive storyboards. The upcoming redevelopment aims to refresh the narrative of the museum, alongside essential infrastructural redevelopments that will help to enhance the experience for visitors.

The Changi Chapel & Museum will be closed to the public during its period of redevelopment, which will happen in two stages – the museum will first be closed to the public from 2 April 2018, while the Changi Chapel will close from 1 January 2019. Both the revamped museum and chapel are expected to reopen to the public in 2020.
The redevelopment of the Changi Chapel & Museum will be managed by NHB, with the conclusion of the contract with TCMPL. Under TCMPL, the Changi Chapel & Museum has successfully established itself as one of the must-see World War II sites in Singapore, and has received international praise for its sensitive and poignant portrayal of the war years in Singapore. The Changi Chapel & Museum has consistently ranked highly amongst museums in Singapore and Asia on TripAdvisor. The various accolades received on TripAdvisor over the years include the “No. 1 Museum in Singapore” (2015, 2016) and “Top 25 Museums in Asia” (#21 in 2015 and #16 in 2016). More than 100,000 visitors, both local and foreign, visit the Changi Chapel & Museum annually.

Mr Jeya Ayadurai, Director of SHC, said, “For the past 17 years, the Changi Museum has grown to become an important place for those seeking a deeper understanding of the difficult years of the war in Singapore. The mission of the museum has been threefold: to recognise the contributions and sacrifices of all who defended Singapore during World War II, to honour the spirit and commitment of those who rose from the depths of adversity, and to inspire future generations through the sharing of stories of courage and resilience.”

“The museum has also established important research and collaborative ties with museums, organisations and Prisoner-of-War (POW) families all over the world. Consequently, it has been immensely rewarding to see the museum become a centre of learning for the war and more significantly, a place where ex-POWs, civilian internees and their families have found emotional closure to a painful period of their lives.”

“The museum has made conscious efforts to promote a culture of remembrance in Singapore through the organisation of several commemoration ceremonies and events, often in collaboration with key stakeholders in local government bodies and the diplomatic community. The museum has also played a role in international reconciliation by bringing together former combatant nations in joint remembrance ceremonies, such as the 75th Anniversary of the Fall of Singapore Commemoration Ceremony.”

The National Museum of Singapore, under NHB, will manage the redevelopment of the Changi Chapel & Museum, given the National Museum’s strong focus on the World War II narrative. Ms Angelita Teo, Director of the National Museum said, “With the redevelopment, visitors can look forward to refreshed content and offerings that will continue to highlight the stories of Changi. These will also complement the overall World War II narrative as told by Commemorate the fight of brave men and women during World War II in Malaya and Singapore, and their subsequent internment. Go back in history to Changi, once the site of many prisoner-of-war camps during the Japanese Occupation, and the site of much pain, torture and human suffering. It is said that more Australian PoWs perished from incarceration than in battle itself. Then, take in the solemn sights of Kranji War Cemetery, the final resting place of 4,461 Allied military personnel who perished in Malaya and Singapore, and more than 24,000 war dead whose remains were never found. Hear their stories of bravery and commitment, and be inspired by the power of the human spirit.
